Assuming proper file permissions and that the blastdb environment variable contains the path to the installation directory of the explosion databases, the following commands accomplish that: # Download TaxDB ArchivePerl Update_blastdb.pl # Install it on Blastdb DirectoryGunzip -CD taxdb.tar.gz | (CD$blastdb; tar xvf -) The basic local alignment search tool (Blast) is the most commonly used sequence similarity tool. The command: blastn is "db is not" Query nt.fsa is "Out-out will perform a search of nt.fsa (a nucleotide sequence in FASTA format) against the NT database, printing results to the results of the file .Out. For example: /update_blastdb.pl --decompress swissprot will download all relevant swissprot tar files. The script can also compare your local copy of the database file (s) and download TAR files if the date stamp has changed reflecting a newer version of the database. Option H provides abbreviated help and the help flag "provides more extensive documentation. Documentation on these identifiers can be found at . The third section is a more in-depth look at the Blast+ applications. This document describes the standalone explosion applications and will focus on the latest generation of such applications included in the + blast package. The first two sections of this document are "confirming the guides that meet the explosion (including Linux and MacOSX) and Windows. The explosion database contains only the textile (an integer) for each entry, and the taxonomic database allows the explosion to retrieve the scientific name, etc. It is also possible to compare a protein or nucleotide query to a PSSM database. NCBI supports a web page from Blast.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov, as well as a network service. The PSI-Blast asu .aduges me .e aAetorp ed atlunoc amu moc aAemoc euq |MSSP| oEASiisop ed acifAeose oEASAutnop ed zirtam amu to perform further searches. There are versions of BLAST that compare protein queries to protein databases, nucleotide queries to nucleotide databases, as well as versions that translate nucleotide queries or databases in all six frames and compare to protein databases or queries. The databases may be retrieved automatically with the update_blastdb.pl PERL script, which is included as part of this distribution. For example, use eAAAhelpt to get a list of output options for the eAAAutfmt option. Create a custom database from a multi-FASTA file of sequences with this minimal command:makeblastdb eAAAn mydb.fsa eAAAbtype nucl eAAApars seqids See the section below. Building a BLAST database with local sequences, for more details. The BLAST databases are required to run BLAST locally and to support automatic resolution of sequence identifiers. If eAAAut results.out eAAAd had been left off, the results would have been printed to stdout (i.e., the screen). A service of the National Library of Medicine, National Institutes of Health.
