To calculate the overall star rating and percentage breakdown by star, we don't use a simple average. Instead, our system considers things like how recent a review is and if the reviewer bought the item on Amazon. It also analyzes reviews to verify trustworthiness. Please try again later. Susan A. Semegran 5.0 out of 5 stars The first disc I tried to copy was something that had been recorded a very long time ago on video tape that I transferred on a DVD. I tried to make a copy of it but the disc copier stopped at 74%. I had no idea why it stopped but I called Copystars immediately and spoke to a very knowledgeable gentleman named Raymond. I told me what probably happened and it made perfect sense to me since the original video camera was not the best but it did the job back in 1978. He also led me through the menu on the duplicator and set things up for me. He told me how to carefully clean the disc and I tried it again and same thing which told me the disc or the recording was not the greatest. He was SO Helpful and made things so easy. I am now prescanning everything before I copy it which will save me a lot of discs. I just copied 6 discs and it was quick!! This is a wonderful product and anyone needing a copy duplicator this is the Rolls Royce of Duplicators. But more important this company, Copystars not only makes a terrific product, but they back it up with GREAT CUSTOMER SERVICE!! Thank you so much Raymond for taking the time to educate this senior, it is appreciated and a great way to start a new year. The price on these duplicators is incredible and its a brilliantly easy machine to use. My duplicator was double boxed and that box was put in an outer shipping box for even more protection. My duplicator arrived fast and in perfect condition. Its an attractive black PC style tower loaded with disc drives. Open the top drive, put in the original you want to copy.

Open the lower drives as many as you need, load with blank media, close the drives and press enter, off it goes. In less than five minutes I made five perfect CD copies, I love it, what a time save. I have a recording studio and were constantly making CD copies for band members, this duplicator is really going to speed up the process and take away the pain. Im sure it will pay for itself quickly. You dont need to fill every drive with blank media, you can make one copy if thats all you need. An awesome machine, thanks Amazon!Sees the entire disk as bad. Tried another and another and another. Brand new out of a sealed wrapper and it sees them all as uncopiable. So I tried letting the machine just do a default copy on a couple new DVDs and they all failed as source disk errors. Instructions are a single sheet one sided quick start guide that didnt even include trouble shooting or how to prescan. I learned prescan from reviews. Also it doesnt tell you this in the description here where you need to know this, but it will not copy store bought or copy protected media. You only find this out after you receive the unit. I guess they like returns. You cannot use it to make backup copies of professional media. Useless. Returned. I push on for power button. then push button to open master drawer. the disk to copy. next. the lower disk drawer. drop in a blank to be copied onto. wala. your ready to start copies. no noise, no instructions needed. but a nice booklet if so required.. I intend to include a copy of our DVD DISK.I checked prices on a commercial DVD COPY SERVICE.If your still deciding.check quantity.always a few in Amazon stock.but not for any length of time. 10 STARS.FOR COPYSTAR.my reputation.honest.a extremely great product.If you read the feedback regarding this product, the percentage was at 4.5 out of 5. Therefore I decided to purchase it with this in mind. The actual cost was 195.00, but then the delivery was 96.78.

This was the first warning sign as it was sold by Copystars Europe, as the initial cost was now 291.78. Why so expensive for a product coming from Europe. I was wrong! Around two weeks later, using the tracking number provided, I found it was exported from the USA. I was not too duly worried, although other thoughts did cross my mind as there were no UK feedbacks to read from previous purchasers. I continued to watch the progress delivery tracking and eventually my package arrived into the UK. A Customs Duty was now requested, a fee to be paid in advance to import it and to allow it into the country before the package could continue its journey to my house. I received a letter from Parcelforce requesting a fee for customs clearance. I assumed around 12.00. No, I was wrong! I had to pay an additional fee of 58.45. I thought all customs duties would be included in the delivery charge. WRONG AGAIN! Anyway, I paid the fee as requested and it was delivered the following day. Very efficient of Parcelforce. I opened the box, and there it was, my pride and joy. As usual I read the quick start menu just to make sure I understood everything. The quickstart menu stated it was important to ensure the voltage switch is selected for the country voltage before starting anything, and the picture demonstrated where the switch is located. Looking at my unit NO VOLTAGE SELECTOR SWITCH. First warning was the mains lead supplied was a twopin round pin plug, with no UK plug lead. No rating plate stating the voltage. Another idea email the customer care support team at Copystars. Did they respond NO. Reading though the international feedback for this product, I found out that units that do not have a selector switch is rated at 110V. I am so glad I didnt risk plug this into a 230V supply with a different lead. What can I do now Another idea, now purchased a 230v 110V step down transformer from Amazon that is suitable for products purchased from aboard with the roundpin plug.

It worked with a sigh of relief and the lights started to operate and the display came alive. Continuing through the stepbystep instructions that were so easy to follow, I was so please it actually worked and manage to make a duplicate of my first DVD. I have repeated the process three times, and each time was successful. So if you want to purchase this unit, please ensure you can justify the cost, and to be aware of the delivery cost, customs duty plus purchase of the step down transformer. I just hope this unit continues to operate. I have awarded it 3 stars for this product, due to all the additional unforeseen costs of customs duty and the transformer. I wish Amazon would ensure to take my comments on board as their description is not fully accurate, unless the specification or supplier location has changed. Now used over a month. The unit failed to copy two DVD, but by using the troubleshooting guide enclosed with unit, and changed the DVD burn rate from the default of x24 to what was stated on the DVD blanks x16, it now appears to be working okay. Verify the first one, and use this to make other copies to other DVD R discs. This is only my opinion which works for me. Still very happy with it, and have now changed the star rating from three to four. Yes, it is expensive for a copier, but it is a standalone unit that makes copies without having to use a computer. I tried to make a copy of it but the disc copier stopped at 74%. But more important this company, Copystars not only makes a terrific product, but they back it up with GREAT CUSTOMER SERVICE!! Thank you so much Raymond for taking the time to educate this senior, it is appreciated and a great way to start a new year. Sees the entire disk as bad. You cannot use it to make backup copies of professional media. Useless. Returned. I kept getting target not found errors. I tried several different blank DVDs but kept getting the same error. I opened up the unit to make sure all the cables were connected correctly. When the unit was assembled they put rubber sealant on the power cable of the dvd recorder to keep it in. Excess rubber sealant went into the sata cable plug and would not allow the sata cable to seat properly. I was able to remove the excess rubber sealant and get the sata cable to seat properly and the unit worked afterwards. Very poor quality control and testing by the manufacturers. I would not recommend this unit to anyone. Please try again later. Please try again later. uly46 5.0 out of 5 stars I wrote a one star review. The company contacted me and offered to walk me thru what I had to do to get the machine to work perfectly. Since it was the holidays I put doing this off until today, January 4th. I called Copystars today and the man there was extremely helpful and helped me set up the machine to do what I need it to do. I looked for my bad review to eliminate it but cant find it. So, let this review be my final word on Copystars and on their service. Thanks, Copystars. Please try again later. Please try again later. Lewis Kempfer 3.0 out of 5 stars As a performer of four decades, I had dozens of shows stuck on dying VHS tapes and needed to transfer them to digital. That was a huge chore in and of itself, but it doesnt relate to this review. I simply wanted to make a few copies for friends and family.

Sometimes the machine will spit out the discs with an error code. Sometimes it just locks up and requires a hard restart. Then theres the damage it has caused to discs from the drawers closing immediately before I have even gotten a disc seated. The drawer grabs and sucks in the disc in and has scraped them. I do not recommend this unit. Please try again later. Please try again later. Carmella A. Obst 5.0 out of 5 stars I was surprised to learn that I didnt even need the pages of directions. I glanced at the onepage quick startup guide, took a chance on a DVD that I had multiple copies of just in case I messed up. All I did was put the original in the top slot and a blank DVD in the bottom slot. Didnt have to do a thing after that. It started copying immediately. No buttons to push. Within a matter of minutes, I had a perfect copy. In fact, when my siblings saw how quickly DVDs were duplicated, I made a bunch of copies of various DVDs on the spot, while we chatted. Super easy! Well worth the price, too! Please try again later. Please try again later. Amazon Customer 5.0 out of 5 stars I am helping her record her old home movies that were on VHS to DVD and needed a way to duplicate the finished DVDs quickly. To duplicate the DVDs on my computer not only would have taken a long time, but would require a lot of work. This machines makes everything very fast and easy. So simple to use. Even someone who is not very tech savvy can use it. You place the dvd you want duplicated in the top tray and a blank dvd in the bottom. With a push of a button, it already starts the copying process. I havent copied that many dvds, but so far the longest time it took was less than 10 minutes. You really cant beat that time. It would have taken at least a couple of hours if not more if I were doing this on my computer. And I was able to play the duplicated DVD on my DVD player just fine. Just plug it in, turn it on, and it is good to go. Copying time for dvd is fast.

Ive read in reviews that music cds are even faster. For what it does and how fast it duplicates, the price is worth it because of how much time it saves you and how easy it is to use. Keep in mind protected dvds are not allowed to be copied, but anyone looking to duplicate dvds such as home movies, I would highly recommend this machine! Please try again later. Please try again later. Don Keele 5.0 out of 5 stars It has taken a load off of my shoulders because it is so easy to use, I no longer have to make multiple copies from my computer. I give her the master. and she can push one button and off she goes. Please try again later. Please try again later. The unit has cut my time by 80% in copying DVDs. This will copy 1 through 15, making quick work of a tedious, time consuming task. I recommend this unit for its ease of use. Please try again later. Please try again later. Yvonne Lee 1.0 out of 5 stars Problem i have is the item description isnt accurate. Item description claims the duplicator is suitable for overseas use as it is multivoltage 110V 240V. On arrival and unboxing, the instruction manual states the duplicator has a switch behind to switch between 110V and 240V. But the duplicator in reality does not have the switch, and the power cable is a 110V cable. So i had to check with Amazon live chat who confirmed the duplicator is 110V. Where i am, i need 240V. Very misleading description. Disappointing. Please correct your item description. Please try again later. Please try again later. Stormy0440 Top Contributor Photography 4.0 out of 5 stars Very easy to use. IF the DVD or CD you are trying to duplicate is in good condition and not a copyprotected DVD or CD, you should have no problems making duplicates of. You cannot make duplicates of movies or games at all, which is no problem for me since I just want to duplicate my CDs with photos on and DVDs I have family videos and personal videos I took with my digital camera over the past few years.

A typical DVD and CD takes me about 12 minutes to duplicate and verify its okay to use. not bad. I had a couple of failed rejected situations also, but not sure why. Overall, I am pleased with this unit, pretty easy to use and really wellbuilt. Please try again later. Please try again later. James Cox 5.0 out of 5 stars Insert master, insert blank and push the button. Not much footprint, either. Thanks. Update A couple days ago I bought a disc that was cracked when I received it. The cracked quadrant was evn bent at the edge about 5 degrees from straight. I thought it was trash, but then I decided to put it in my 2 drive Copystars unit just for grins. It sounded like a shredder for the first 30 seconds or so and suddenly began COPYING. The copy completed and it is an exact max. I know what was supposed on the original and the copy read as it should in my laptop to the last bit! Please try again later. Please try again later. employees, family friends or church members. You would literally spend a day or two before the process is done, if you are lucky enough to have your machine still in operation. DVD duplicators are the answer to your problems. These machines are made to handle multiple DVDs, copying data from the original DVD to the rest at incredible speeds. You can literally make ten copies of your wedding video in less than an hour. DVD duplicators come in three different kinds to suit different users, which is why you have to do some homework before you shop for one. These include StandAlone Duplicators These are the kind of duplicators that operate without the use of a PC. They are independent and only need a source DVD, blank discs and power to do the copying. You can use it anywhere and move it from one room to another, just like a portable DVD player. If you want to go with a model that operates with a host computer, ensure that your machine can handle it and it won't choke during the process. The entire job is done without your supervision. They are great time savers and tend to be quite expensive but if you need to do a LOT of duplicating, they are most likely what you will want to get. That's not all when it comes to DVD duplicators.

You will find that some models can burn blu ray discs to be played by blu ray DVD players, and others that can only burn standard discs to be played by regular DVD players nonblu ray. Depending on your needs and the type of discs you want to burn, ensure that you go for the right model to avoid regrets later on. Before we get to our top choices, let's take a closer look at things to consider when purchasing a new DVD duplicator. Generally, a player with around 11 drives will cost more than one that comes with just two or three drives. Apart from this factor, the price ranges are greatly dependent on the type of the duplicator manual or automatic. A manual one is obviously less expensive than its automatic counterpart. You will also find that DVD duplicators that support blu ray discs will cost more compared to those that can only burn standard discs. And yes, you might miss the extra feature of an added hard disc if you are looking to go with a cheap DVD duplicator. As a general rule of thumb, do not go for the really cheap models as they might not incorporate essential features, not to mention burn at annoyingly slow speeds. Start by knowing whether you need a standalone model that allows you to fill in the discs and push a button, or a computer operated one that is operated from your PC, and then proceed to the number of discs you intend to duplicate per task. You can find models that can copy from one disc to around 11 of them. Apart from these crucial features, here are a few more you may want to look for to help keep you on the right track Drive Speed How fast can the duplicator burn DVDs. A drive that's able to burn discs at 8x speed is obviously slower than its 20x speed counterpart. Automatic duplicators, on the other hand, come with a disc hopper that allows the machine to insert a new disc ever time copying is completed You will find that duplicators with more drives tend to be taller than those with fewer drives.

If you need a bigger duplicator, ensure that you have ample space for it. The standalone models will come with a power port, while its computeroperated cousins will feature a USB cable to connect to the PC. Most models also come with an LCD screen that displays information about the burning speed, time expected, as well as other controls. They also have buttons on the front side that allow you to pause and play to continue with duplication. The standalone model is easier to use as it doesn't require any software. The computer operated one is dependent on a PC and can only work when operated via the computer. There are also automatic models that just require you to add your discs, configure the settings, push a button and voila. When looking at different models, there are some questions you will want to ask. How flexible is the DVD duplicator. Does it allow you to make changes such as tweaking edits or adjusting the burning speed or the disc menu at the last minute. Can you pause the duplication and continue later. Some models will allow you to make quick simple changes, either through the computer or the control system on the machine. Better yet, there are some models that come with a password protection feature, helping you protect the machine from unauthorized usage. Yes, it's true that DVD duplicators can cut the duplication time significantly, allowing you to finish the job within an hour or less. But you will find that some models are faster than others. This is mainly determined by the drives and their burning speed. CDs will burn faster than DVDs and blu ray discs slower. We hope our review came in handy in your decision making.
